How am I doing?

Good—I build strong trusting relationships with families through several welcome meetings before their child starts in my setting and through regular communication and consultation. When interventions are needed I do this in partnership with children and their families.

How do I know?

- I share information with families daily using tools such as whatsapp and online diaries.
- I have a number of meetings with families prior to their child starting in my setting.
- When early interventions are needed I involve the families in planning them and evaluating the outcomes.
- I use care plans to inform the support and care I give to the children.
- Care plans are updated regularly and these updates are shared with families
- I plan and consult with the children when I purchase new resources.
- I have a rigorous anti-discrimination policy which I ensures no one is discriminated against on the grounds of ability, gender, age, faith mental health, race or sexual orientation.

What am I going to do now?

I will look into and implement better systems for gathering families' opinions and feedback.
